

Second Sunday in Ordinary Time-January 15, 2017

THREE MISSIONS

Today we begin with one of the “servant songs” from the book of Isaiah, a song prophetic of Jesus’ ministry of service. Isaiah’s mission is not only to bring back the children of Jacob to gather in Israel; it is also to be “a light to the nations” (Isaiah 49:6). Jesus Christ, as servant, will be the fulfillment of the ancient prophecy and the basis of the new.

This Sunday we begin a series of readings from Paul’s letter to the Corinthians. Here Paul is identified by his mission: he is an apostle of Jesus Christ. The church at Corinth to whom he addresses this letter is also identified: it is part of the universal church of God. The Corinthians are called to holiness, as are all Christians.

Though the feast of the Baptism of the Lord was celebrated last Monday, today’s Gospel also alludes to the importance of that event. The reading emphasizes that Jesus “outranks” John: his baptism in the Spirit will eradicate sin. Jesus accepts John’s baptism, even though it is he himself who is the Lamb of God.

Second Reading — All those who call upon the name of the Lord are called to be holy (1 Corinthians 1:1-3).

TREASURES FROM OUR TRADITION

As soon as Christmas ends, people begin planning for Easter! Originally, the source of our Paschal Triduum was but a single liturgy extending from Saturday sundown to sunrise on Easter Sunday. The two days leading up to the liturgy were days of fast, not only for the elect, but for the church preparing to baptize them. A fifth-century pope explained that the church imitated the apostles, who were in hiding with their grief from the arrest of Jesus, and therefore sacraments, even penance, were forbidden.

Inevitably, though, people wanted to come together, and so eventually a Liturgy of the Word developed for Good Friday. This was the first step toward today's shape of the Triduum, and gradually new ideas were embraced, including the veneration of the cross and a simple Communion service. Interestingly, the Word remained central, since we know that in those days the pope did not receive Communion at this liturgy, even though the faithful had that option. In the other churches of Rome, priests and people received Communion under both species. Although the custom of Communion on Good Friday took hold, it did not endure past the Middle Ages. The central liturgies of the year slowly unraveled and disappeared from parish life. Remember that there were no seminaries in those days, and books were a rare luxury. Most priests could only manage to celebrate a simple "low" Mass, and few parishes could afford the ritual books that would guide a priest through the complex forms. Holy Week remained important in private devotion, but for a time the liturgies virtually disappeared.

There's no such thing, I'd like to point out, as the First Sunday in Ordinary Time. In our liturgical calendar, there's a First Week in Ordinary Time, which we just wrapped up, but by default its Sunday is on the tail end of the Christmas Season.

So today, as the Second Sunday in Ordinary Time, is the first Sunday (Saturday evening Mass of Anticipation, if you're here the night before) we return to green vestments.

You can tell there's still a hint of the Christmas Season in the air, though, by the Gospel. While we've now begun Year A in the lectionary cycle, making our way through the Gospel of Matthew, our gospel passage from John today describes the aftermath of Jesus' baptism, with his cousin the Baptist describing the Spirit descending like a dove upon Jesus from heaven.

Green, Ordinary Time's vestment color, is understood as being a color of the Holy Spirit, signifying the new life the Spirit, the Lord, the Giver of Life, brings to us. Like water, which sustains every plant even as each plant grows in its own fashion, the Spirit brings renewal to every person distinctly in the manner that allows each person to thrive.

As we emerge from the Christmas Season into the tumult of daily life, as both our world and our souls embody the battle between heaven and hell, we draw upon this life the Spirit brings to us. God has no small projects. As his grace is at work in us, he is bringing about the transformation of the world, as Isaiah says today: "I will make you a light to the nations, that my salvation may reach to the ends of the earth."
